Introduction

These guidelines on how to describe Nexia International have been developed to ensure that Nexia International is presented coherently across the network. It also aims to protect member firms and Nexia International from the risk of significant legal liability, in an environment where international accounting networks may be held liable for the acts and omissions of a member firm. Describing Nexia International and its member firms correctly and consistently is an important element of mitigating that risk and we encourage you to take notice of the correct wording in this guidance and use it in all communications, printed and electronic.

When any reference is made to Nexia International Limited, Nexia International or Nexia, the appropriate disclaimers must be used in addition to any member firm disclaimers.

If you are in any doubt about the wording in a communication please consult with the Nexia marketing team at marketing@nexia.com.
